On display some 90 works from the collections of the Museum of Rome, the Municipal Gallery of Modern Art, the Collection Collection Pia and Peter Petrucci Pullini: drawings, watercolors and paintings divided into three sections that follow periods when he lived in Rome Pullini : from 1906 to the outbreak of the Great War from 1920 to 1922 and from 1934 until his death.

The first section contains some illustrations made by the artist for major magazines and newspapers including "The Illustrated Forum" and "The City." Pullini frescoed with other painters Palace Interior Ministry (1920), depicts in an unusual and intimate Gabriele D'Annunzio, painted the official portrait of Pope Pius XI and a unique caricature of the poet Trilussa, his longtime friend. In '22 he left Rome to teach design in schools of Cagliari, Rovigo and Faenza but maintains contact with the city through participation in exhibitions (in '21 I participate in the Biennale Romana, in '26 the exhibition of caricatures former restaurant Biffi and from '27 to '30 the annual exhibitions of Amateurs and Connoisseurs of art at the Palazzo delle Esposizioni). In addition to its growing reputation with an illustration of the unique book of readings for the first and second grade.

The second section recounts the years of World War II and postwar with watercolors characterized by an ironic and painful realism. The watchful eye and sympathetic to Pullini focuses on priests and kings, nobles and bourgeois politicians and common people, veterans and heroes, Fascist and American newcomers. All full-length portraits are blurred backgrounds while minimizing caricatured traits, a choice that makes this a true document of those times.

The third and final section contains a group of paintings, starting dal1912, they document the work as a portraitist. From naked women, evidence of his training at the Institute of Fine Arts in Rome Atelier Giulio Aristide Sartorio, to later works where a vein outcrops more familiar and intimate.
